Tangible benefits through networking and developing action points to take back to the workplace

The ICCM Learning Convention and Exhibition 2011 provides the best opportunity for those involved in Bereavement Services to keep up to date with news, initiatives and the latest services and products in the industry.

The current financial situation is presenting many challenges for those employed in both public and private sector cemeteries and crematoria. Papers at the Conference will address these issues, and will explore innovative ways of improving services whilst faced with ever-decreasing resources.

Networking is an important part of the Learning Convention, as it provides opportunities to meet and learn from colleagues. New for 2011 is the chance to work in small teams to help provide solutions to key questions about service provision.

Regular updates about the ICCM Learning Convention and Exhibition will appear on the ICCM website at www.iccm-uk.com. To pre-register your interest in attending please email Julie Dunk at julied.iccm@yahoo.co.uk or call 07976 939585.
