HB26/37/002 C	129-12	J3150 7580	Holy Cross Boys School including perimeter walls and railings 432 Crumlin Road Crumlin Road Belfast BT13 3BX		B1	Single-storey multi bay red-brick and sandstone school of 1913-14 by W.J. Moore. Holy Cross Boys National School is a example of Edwardian Free Style architecture, blending diverse but finely-worked design elements such as a notable pagoda-style entrance, gothic overlights, and gargoyle-like carving. Largely intact both externally and internally it is a prominently located building of undoubted interest both in terms of character and social history. It is a good example of an unusual style and of the building type and its relationship with the neighbouring Holy Cross Church and monastery adds interest.	1900 - 1919
